Premier Doumergue of France Delivers Formal Oration
At Invalides

"LIFE SACRIFICED"

Paris, Oct. 12.—Representatives of rulers of the world assembled in Paris today to join President Albert Lebrun, Premier Gaston Doumergue, and parliament in the last tribute to Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, assassin's victim.

Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, flew from London to represent the English. Edouard Benes, Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister, and Joseph A. C. Venot, secretary-general of the League of Nations, came from Geneva to represent the League.

Although Barthou's desire was for a most simple funeral was overridden, it was arranged to have only one speaker, Doumergue, at the ceremonies before the catafalque at the Invalides Esplanade.

Barthou's casket was carried on the shoulders of six of his colleagues in the French foreign office, through a solid line of soldiers with fixed bayonets preventing any approach.

Under Grey Sky

Under a grey sky, the cortege moved slowly, the last of the mourners leaving the foreign office just as the first arrived at the car corner of the Esplanade, about two blocks away where the bare-headed Doumergue mounted the rostrum.

Ten soldiers bore cushions with the foreign minister's decorations, conferred by a score of nations during his 45 years of public life.

Lebrun was the first among the mourners, then followed the premier and the cabinet, the diplomats close behind. Philippe Roy, the Canadian minister, was in the second row.

Universities and the courts were represented by brilliantly robed professors and judges in ermine-trimmed gowns.

Barthou's Mission

"A few days Barthou was to visit a neighboring country to which we are closely allied by ties of blood, iron out differences and promote understanding," the premier told his dumbstruck audience.

"The tragic events at Marseilles" he continued, "striking Yugoslavia to her very heart and us in the person of one of the most illustrious statesmen, cannot but shut closer the union of our two peoples."

"Let us block the road to the forces of evil spreading death and let us remember that the man who just sacrificed his life while attempting to assure the peace of the world."

QUEEN AFFECTED

Belgrade, Oct. 13 (A.P. Copyright).
—A scene of unprecedented popular acclaim, joy and devotion greeted the child king, Peter when he arrived today to take the throne of his assassinated father.

Peter arrived at nine a.m. accompanied by the widowed queen and her mother, Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania.

Three weeks ago the 11-year-old Peter left here as a simple school boy on his way to England to be educated. Today he returned a king.

All through the night huge crowds thronged the railroad station. When they caught sight of the smiling boy, standing on the platform of the train waving his handkerchief, tears of pity and sympathy mingled with the cries of joy and affection from the multitude.

Widow Exhausted

The widow of Alexander was too exhausted from the long train ride and mental bodily afflictions to participate in the welcome.

In the royal reception room of the cathedral Peter was greeted by the head of the Yugoslav church, the patriarch, the Archbishop of Belgrade, Chief Rabbi and Reu U. Ullin, head of the Moslem Church.

Peter's bereaved mother, the picture of sorrow and despair, who had to be supported by her mother, looking radiantly beautiful despite her 40 years, was next greeted by waiting dignitaries.

Near Breakdown

There was a strong emotional scene as Prince Paul, inheritor of Alexander's legacy, and ideals, regretted the widow. She tottered forward and appeared on the verge of absolute breakdown.

The mayor of Belgrade then came forward and offered Peter the traditional bread and salt on a silver platter, the sign of true Slavic welcome.
The young monarch took the bread, dipped it in the salt and ate it.

The streets were lined with troops, police and spectators. Overhead squadrons of military aeroplanes circled about.

FEARS HELD FOR MRS. STOLL'S LIFE

Family Meets All Requirements of Abductor and Awaits Any News

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13.—Squad of city and county police today rushed toward the vicinity of the Ballard school house, a quarter of a mile from the home of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, kidnap victim.

Several directions in automobiles and motorcycles at high speed.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13.—As hours went by today without definite word from Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, wealthy young society matron, who was brutally abducted for $50,000 ransom on Wednesday, members of her family anxiously awaited her release, or some message to dispel fears for her life.

Mrs. Stoll was still when carried away from her suburban home near Louisville. She had been slugged at least twice with an iron pipe, and she was thinly clad in a negligee, though her abductor permitted her to wear a light coat.

The Stolls, however, had met all ransom requirements, and despite anxiety were hopefully awaiting her return.

What basis there might be for their hopeful attitude was not discussed.
If a contact had been made with the kidnapper, it had been done in strict secrecy.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 13.—Walter Children, an unemployed man from Cleveland, was released today after being held 24 hours for questioning about the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Stoll in Louisville, Ky.

Is Oversubscribed by Least Thirty-three Million, Minister Says

RATIO OF AWARD

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—Over-subscription of the 1934 Dominion refunding loan by almost $33,000,000 necessitating a heavy allotment of the loan, the subscriptions was announced today by Minister of Finance E. N. Rhodes.
The total subscribed for the $250,000, 000 flotation was almost $283,000,000.

All cash subscriptions were received subject to allotment and they will be cut while holders of maturing 7% bonds re-investing in the new loan will receive the full amount of their subscriptions.

With an over-subscription of "the $33,000,000," said Mr. Rhodes, "the loan may be regarded as an outstanding success."

All cash subscriptions in amounts up to $25,000 in all four maturities are allotted in full. In the two year two per cent bonds and the five year 2-1/2 per cent bonds, cash subscriptions in excess of $25,000 will be allocated only 50 per cent. In the eight year three per cent bonds and the 15-year 4-1/2 bonds, cash subscriptions of $25,000 and of $50,000 will receive an allotment of 70 per cent, and allotments over $50,000 will be allotted 50 per cent.

Degenerate Sought
For Attack Upon
Vancouver Child

Vancouver, Oct. 13.—Police are scouring the city for a degenerate who last evening invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blanchard and criminally assaulted their six-year-old daughter. Police report the attack was of a most brutal nature, and the child is in a serious condition.

The parents left their three children asleep, believing them safe as the grandfather lives in a cottage at the rear of the Blanchard home. Neighbors heard the child screaming about nine p.m. but did not investigate. Two hours later, the grandfather who had been asleep, heard the girl crying, and found the doors open and the child in an agony of pain and fear. The eldest of the three children was attacked. She could give only a vague description of her assault.

Germany To End Commercial Treaty With U. S.

SCORN AND DERISION

Washington, Oct. 13.—(CP Copyright). — The economically harrassed German government today made a drastic move to clarify its economic and financial relations with the United States by announcing its intention of terminating its unconditional most-favored nation commercial treaty with this country on Oct.
14, 1935.

Dr. Hans Luther, the German ambassador, served official notice in a formal note delivered to Secretary of State Cordell Hull that the Reich would abrogate the treaty next year.

"At the same time, it was understood to have expressed the hope a new reciprocal agreement—without the most-favored nation clause—would be negotiated by the two governments.

Germany's denunciation of the treaty climaxes a series of diplomatic representations growing out of the "course" Government's strict control of all imports, extensive system of monopolies, and drastic quota limitations.

Mayor Suggests Sinking Fund

Discussion of the financing of the commercial course at the local schools featured last night's meeting of the school board. The chairman, Mr. Jno.
Shaw, announced that 90 pupils, the largest number on record, were taking the course. Typewriters, he declared that students paid a fee for this course, and a certain part of it should be placed with the City Council in a trust fund. The matter was left in abeyance, and will be discussed at the meeting of the City Council by Mr. J. J. Barty.

It was shown that the City had advanced the sum of $3,000 to the school board when the latter inaugurated the commercial course. The amount has since been repaid.

Mr. Barty pointed out the fact that the city was then in better financial condition. "No one would have predicted what may happen between the present and some future date when the money will have to be repaid," he said.

The board granted permission to Teachers from many parts of the Island, and Vancouver assembled in the Malaspina Hotel last evening for the dinner and dance held in connection with the convention of the Central Vancouver Island Teachers' Institute.

Mr. T. Spargo acted as toastmaster. Mr. A. Sullivan, principal of the Washington Normal School, and Mrs. Fisher, Mr. Fisher, replied, dilating upon the advantages of the Canadian system of government. It was among many things he pointed out the Dominion.

"Government liquor control system of British Columbia has been adopted in toto down in our state," declared the speaker, "and your radio broadcasts free from advertising and government control are very favorably received on the other side."

"President Roosevelt is the greatest leader in our United States and, despite his physical disability, had vision and ability to change systems, when they proved unfitting, and to replace them with something that would be more suitable."

"Unemployment in the United States was colossal, in the city of New York alone, there are one million unemployed. One out of every six are out of work in most parts of the country," the speaker declared.

President of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, Mr. J. R. Mitchell, amused his listeners with his description of the vicissitudes suffered by a delegate to northern points in B. C.

During the program instrumental music was supplied by the Nanaimo String Ensemble, composed of Mrs. Barrie Goult, Mr. Gabe Brown and Mr. E. Mallins.

The readings by Jackie Cooper met with instant success, and merited hearty applause.

How Philip, by Knowledge, Preached Christ To the Ethiopians

Acts 8:26-30
26. And the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert.

27. And he arose and went: and behold, a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship.

28. Was returning, and sitting in his chariot read Esaias the prophet.

29. Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot: and thou shalt read.

30. And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him.

31. And the place of the scripture which he read was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened not his mouth:

32. In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

33. And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, who speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

34. And Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

35. And as they went their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water: what doth hinder me to be baptized?

36. And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.

37. And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

38. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more; and he went on his way rejoicing.

MUSICAL MOMENTS

"ORIGIN AND GROWTH OF PIANOFORTE"

The Origin and Growth of the Pianoforte, an interesting topic, which follows, was read recently at a meeting of the Nanaimo Women's Musical by Mrs. C. J. Keightley.

In ancient times there were two instruments much alike, the "psaltery" and the "dulcimer." The psaltery is mentioned in the Bible and there is a celebrated carving of King David playing on it in Shrewsbury cathedral.

The psaltery is the grandfather of the virginal, spinet, clavichord and harpsichord, while the "dulcimer" is the remote ancestor of the pianoforte.

In the 10th century, the "organum" arose, an elementary system of accompaniment to the voice and in the 11th century the "monochord," invented by Guido d'Arezzo, was used to give the pitch in convent singing. It was a very makeshift contrivance, and four strings, and was very difficult to manipulate.

The Clavichordium
In 1440 the clavichordium, having eight short and sixteen long strings, took the place of the monochord. It had a balanced keyboard and there still exists one in the United Kingdom at Blair Athole, bearing the very late date of 1630.

The next instrument which comes before the clavichord is the "virginal," said to be named "from the virgin Queen Elizabeth" and was popular at the time of Shakespeare and many composers of that day wrote music for it. It was superseded by its "spinet" so-called from its inventor Sebastian Spinetti which lasted during the 17th century, which there are dates from 1602 to 1704. Samuel Pepys had a spinet which he bought in 1664.

Then appeared the "clavichord" all the strings being of the same length with a short sound-board which always remained a peculiarity of that instrument. It remained the longest in use in Germany, even until the commencement of the 19th century, being the favorite clavier of the Electors.

The Harpsichord
The "harpsichord" was like a keyboard instrument and shaped something like our grand piano. It was known from the 15th century. They were both small and large and were associated with the organ until the 17th century, when the Rockers family developed harpsichords into a fine art and made them famous. They drew such prices as Cremona draw now and there are still many specimens in Belgium, England and France.

Early in the 18th century, musicians wanted instruments on which they could express deeper feelings and started looking deeper for some way to make the harpsichord meet this need.

The man who actually made and invented the first piano was an Italian, Bartolomeo Cristofori, 1731, of Padua. He was a man of genius and the fame of his inventions spread into Germany. He introduced the hammer action, capable of producing piano and forte effects. One of his first pianofortes is also in the Metropolitan Museum in New York and has been considerably restored. He was followed by Gottlieb Schoeter, who made two kinds of pianos but the piano had little standing till Gottfried Silbermann made a grand type. Silbermann has three grand pianos in the three palaces of Potsdam. Each played on one of the town palaces.

Meyer and Chickering
The introduction of iron into pianoforte structure was independent of the American and gained Meyer in Philadelphia and Conrad Meyer in Boston which brought the grand piano up to a higher degree of perfection. Chickering made pianos as early as 1823.

The first square piano made in France was constructed in 1776 by Sebastian Erard, a young Alsatian. In 1786 he came to England and founded the London manufactory of Erard and pianofortes bearing his name. Last played on one of the Erard pianos when he was 12 years old. Erard also used iron with wood for strengthening the frame work and it was noticed by an Englishman, which Hawkins, who also produced the first familiar concert grand piano or portable grand as he then called it. Another French maker was Ignaz Josef Pleyel who also made a piano with a very sympathetic note which Chopin made famous. The Pleyel and the Erard are still the leading pianos in France.

Damper and Soft Pedal
In 1770 there was a piano maker in London who had a Scotch assistant, James Broadwood, by name, who became his partner. Later, the firm became John Broadwood and Sons, which it has remained up to the present time. This firm was the first to use the damper and the soft pedal.

There is an old play-bill of Covent Garden in Messrs. Broadwood's possession dated May 16, 1767, which has the following announcement: "Miss Erickler will sing a favorite song from Judith, accompanied by Mr. Dibdin, on a new instrument called pianoforte." John Broadwood, having

MADE THE TOWN

by RUBY M. AYRES

Diana, a young English girl, in love with Dennis Rathbone, a married man, undergoes a nervous collapse and is sent to the sanitarium, recuperating under the care of Dr. Donald Rathbone, who lives near the cottage where she stays. She finds herself falling in love with the doctor, but still trying to hold Dennis' affection. Little Dennis' wife tells her that she offered Dennis a divorce but he would not accept it: he would have said "I will not divorce you, Dennis." Diana's love for Doctor Rathbone is tempered by jealousy of a woman named Rosalie, who lives in the doctor's home. At last Rathbone finds that he is deeply in love with Diana, but he confesses to her that Rosalie is his wife.

"I was terribly sorry for her, too, and perhaps flattered that she should think anything of me, but I did not love her, Diana, and we were just friends until . . . until I got an appointment abroad. When I told her about it she . . . it was the first time anyone really definite was spoken to me. Perhaps I wasn't very brave, or perhaps I didn't really care to show her how impossible it was . . . that I could not . . . There is no need to tell you every detail, and God knows I am not blaming her any more than I blame myself, but without my knowledge she told her husband that she cared for me . . . and he asked him to divorce her . . . He refused. I have often wondered why, seeing how he had always neglected her . . . Then, after a short time, he left him. Diana—if you know how hard it is for me to tell you this . . . He broke off, as I said, but Diana did not speak, and after a moment he went on again: "In the end . . . in the end . . . I agreed to take her away. We thought it would force her husband to divorce her . . . She was so different from those other girls and reckoned on the cost of anything—only living for the moment . . . Then the night before we were to have gone she was nearly killed in a motor accident. She was driving her own car, and she was alone . . . She was unconscious for days, and when she recovered . . . she was as she is now—a child. She recognized me, as she still recognizes me, but only as an affectionate child, and that is all. The rest, everything that has happened in her life, is gone from her."

"I paid a visit to see her husband—the lady nobody else who cared or who could have looked after her—and I remember that she laughed in my face. He was a much older man than I, and he said to me, 'Well, you've been a pay already, Rathbone, and your life . . . It is so true that he was . . . I and Mrs. Farmer came to look after her. Two years later her husband died . . . and I married her, Diana. You see, I'd always promised her that I was ever free of you. I gave you my word. I felt that I must keep it. There was always a thought at the back of my mind that perhaps some day she might get better—and know! I didn't tell anybody—would anybody else be so kind to her? I told Mrs. Rathbone to Mrs. Farmer and Hobson—and to the rest of the household. But she is my wife, Diana, though I—we've never lived together as man and wife."

"That's all . . . Perhaps I was stupidly quaint, but I was—fond of her, she said. I had given my word. I felt that I must keep it. There was always a thought at the back of my mind that perhaps some day she might get better—and know! I didn't tell anybody—would anybody else be so kind to her? I told Mrs. Rathbone to Mrs. Farmer and Hobson—and to the rest of the household. But she is my wife, Diana, though I—we've never lived together as man and wife."

CHAPTER XVII
He stopped speaking, and Diana said faintly: "You mean that . . . she—Rosalie . . . Like sweet bells jangled—out of tune," Rathbone quoted grimly. "Diana closed her eyes. "There was a little silence; then she said again:

"Perhaps—some day—when we're both quite old—I shall wonder . . . if you will forget me. Do you think you will, Donald?"
"I shall never cease to think of you—and love you."
"But you'll send me away from you . . . all the same. I know that's what you mean to do," she said with a cry of pain.
"What else is there for me to do, Diana?"
"I could see you sometimes—couldn't I? . . . Not very often if you didn't want to—but just . . . sometimes . . . I wouldn't care what you did if you didn't. I'll do anything—anything you want me to do, if only it doesn't mean I shall never see you any more . . . We could just go on—being friends."
"Do you think we could just go on being friends, Diana?"
She struggled for words in which she could best express herself. "It seems to me that it wouldn't be such a great—wickedness if you and I lived together, even if I can never be married. Don't think all the wrong things about me for saying that. I know quite well what I'm saying. It wouldn't be like going away with Dennis—that was just a sort of bravado—defiance—to try and forget you. I'd made up my mind to drink lots of champagne tonight just so I should not care, but if it had been you . . . I love you just as well every minute of the day as I do now. I shouldn't care if you never loved me. If all I could just be with you, I've been so silly. You said once that you didn't believe I'd ever met real love."
"I hadn't till you came. I must have been waiting for you. Can you understand that, too?"
"You make me very humble, Diana." She leaned forward a little, trying to see his face.
"And—will you?" she asked.
"Will I live with you?"
"Let me live with you?"

Clothes Last 6 Times Longer

There is no rubbing with the Easy Electric Washing Machine, that is why clothes last six times as long. The scientifically designed polished cups force the hot water cleaning suds through and through the clothes 72 times per minute, yet the clothes never rub, twist, tangle, snag or suffer injury in any way. Their operation is practically noiseless; it will wash a batch of clothes from 8 to 10 minutes, and the soft rubber rolls of the swinging wringer will wring a blanket or a handkerchief equally dry. The full-capacity tub is porcelain enamelled inside and out and is delightfully easy to clean.

Let us do a demonstration washing in your own home. Sold for cash or terms so easy you will pay for it on what you save on your present method of washing.
