'Come With Me In Drive For Action', Exhorts H. Stevens

Former Minister Challenges People; Gives Concrete Proposals
WANTS NO LEADERSHIP

Montreal, Dec. 5.—The people of Canada today stood challenged by Hon. H. Stevens to "come with me in a drive for practical action" to clear up abuses and maladjustments in the country's economic life.

Not a one seeking leadership of a party, but one determined to arouse thoroughly Canadian public opinion so that every leader of every government in the country would be forced to act to stamp out sweatshops, to clear up the housing problem, to improve farming conditions, to work for property, the former minister of trade and commerce last night laid down a programme of concrete proposals.

The former minister of trade and commerce and former chairman of the commission investigating mass buying and price spreads addressed an enthusiastic, overflow audience of more than 8,000 sponsored by the Retail Merchants Association in Atlantic Market.

Chief of his proposals was the establishment of a permanent federal trade and industrial commission, charged with:

Enforcement of the Weights and Measures Act: "If any independent merchant or member of a chain, give the public short weight. It had lock his store and placard it: 'This store closed for three days for short weighing the public.'"

Elimination of "boss leader" advertising, and definition of what are and what are not "fair trade practices."

TWO GOLD STRIKES REPORTED IN SOUTH

Californians Win Wealth From Hills; Prospectors Swarm To Mojave

Mojave, Cal., Dec. 5.—Hundreds of prospectors swarmed into this desert town today as two more rich gold strikes were reported in the vicinity of the Silver Queen, the West's newest bonanza.

Before dawn today, scores of miners took to the hills after spending the night in their automobiles. The "smell of gold" was everywhere and Mojave bordered upon hysterical reminiscence of the days of '49.

Three after noon yesterday Ralph and George Wynan drove in from the hills, the rumble seat of their little roadster filled with ore.

Middle Butte is a Rhyolite outcropping similar to the hill on which the Silver Queen is located. The ore strike was reported in Pine Tree Canyon, 20 miles from here.

Prospectors poured into the strike area in spite of warnings of veteran miners and state officials that expensive machinery is necessary to extract the yellow metal from the ore carried out of the hills.

Meanwhile George Holmes, discoverer of the Silver Queen, who has given an option on his 60 per cent interest to South African interests for a reported $2,500,000, was the crowner of all eyes in Mojave.

The new break was believed to have been from 50 to 60 feet long and about 100 feet wide. JEWISH EDITOR SAYS RUSSIANS NOT STARVING

Denies Report Upon Return From Brief Trip To Far East
AGAINST WAR

Victoria, Dec. 5.—You can say that the plebe of the Soviet republic had the lack of bread and starving is untrue, Benjamin Z. Goldberg, associate editor of The Day, Liberal newspaper of New York, a Jewish newspaper with a large circulation throughout America, told newspapermen aboard the Empress of Japan on her arrival here by the far east.

Mr. Goldberg spent three months there, entering through Scandinavia, and leaving it by way of Siberia. "Leaders of the Soviet republic had tackled the economic structure at the bottom, and workers no longer lack the necessities of life. It is not the best country in the world to live in, and the middle class—artists, clerks and professional men—is having the hardest time there at present. With the means of production being more intelligently handled in time passes I can see no reason why Russia shouldn't be well away in another five years."

PACIFISM AT U. B. C.

Newspapers, published by Canadian universities, have circulated a questionnaire regarding war. Out of Point Grey, 90 per cent of the young men and women who signed the questionnaire (they represented only one-quarter of the student body) were against conflict of any sort, in which Canada might participate.

Our university population has always been inclined that way. They have seen that Gen. Sherman's definition of war was certainly correct, and they have felt it is no fun to be blown up by explosives from which someone is making a huge profit.

You can hardly blame them for that. What you can blame them for is the fact that only one-quarter of the students answered the questionnaire.

It has been said by another newspaperman, that the boys and girls were not interested about the war at the University. They are more interested in fraternities and the current football game.

It is not a healthy attitude. An old Greek tag has it that "Discipline is a sign of the best." But there is little discussion at Point Grey these days, more of the pity.

That is why the people of the province need not be shocked at our students' seeming lack of patriotism. Times have changed at Point Grey. There are no longer ten Common Room debates, and lockroom arguments. One-third talks for the whole. The University is not interested in "isms."

Certainly, it would be a healthful sign if there was more interest in modern subjects and less interest in the social round.

WORLD OPINION

The question here is whether the world is so divided that it is necessary to carry the continuation of the Nanaimo Free Press.

TOO MANY LAWMAKERS

The United States' 8158 lawmakers are recently being reduced by 83. Arthur Brisbane tells what happened at the last election in Nebraska, at the suggestion of Senator George W. Norris, wiped out its state senate, with 33 members, and its state house of representatives, with 100 members substituting, for both a single body, unicameral legislature, one single house of 50 members.

"Consolidating two legislative bodies into one and lopping off the public payrolls 83 from a total of 133, is a good step in the direction of reducing the national, state, city and county payroll armies of tax-devouring officials."

Canada has 881 lawmakers which is more than there are in any of the following countries:

- Japan, with 27,000,000 people.
- Netherlands, with 8,000,000 people.
- Poland, with 32,000,000 people.
- Portugal, with 7,000,000 people.
- Sweden, with 6,000,000 people.
- Australia, with 7,000,000 people.
- Argentina, with 15,000,000 people.
- Greece, with 6,000,000 people.
- South Africa, with 7,000,000 people.

We do not need more than from 10 to 30 legislators in any province; not more than 100 at Ottawa.

CANADA'S UNSOLVED MYSTERIES

GALLANT DEATH OF JOHNNY COPP

By JOHN C. SCOTT
 Canadian Press Staff Writer.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Canadian Press)

Toronto, Ont.—Shooting of the youthful and popular Johnny Copp, University of Toronto football player and Sunday School teacher, in the garden of the family home here about a year ago, aroused public sympathy and indignation to degrees seldom exemplified in a large city.

Copp died Dec. 3, 1933, three days after he had been shot in the abdomen while struggling with a porch-climber trying to enter his home. Police threw their best resources into the hunt for the murderer. Large rewards were offered. But the perpetrator of the crime is still unknown.

On the evening of the shooting, while his mother's guests were playing bridge, Copp noticed a figure silhouetted against a second-storey window. He rushed downstairs to the chase in the meantime calling to his friend, Edward Houston, to summon the police.

Running out the rear entrance, Copp saw the would-be burglar on the roof of the back porch. He ordered him to come down. The intruder obeyed but grappled with the young athlete and was thrown to the ground. Jumping up quickly the man pulled a gun and in the ensuing struggle Copp was shot. Houston returned just in time to see the back of the gunman's head as he made his escape.

Copp reached the house and collapsed. He was rushed to hospital, where Dr. Herbert Bruce, Ontario's lieutenant-governor, performed the gallant removing operation. Friends supplied blood for transfusions, but Copp succumbed after a gallant fight for life.

Sixty suspects were rounded up for questioning. Identification presented to them was a name but Copp had actually seen much of the murderer. Houston had but a fleeting glance. However, a telephone message was received at his home to the effect he would get "the same" as "Copp," if he didn't "lay off."

Copp's death started a crusade against illegal possession of fire arms by private individuals. At the suggestion of the police many citizens surrendered revolvers and automatics to the authorities.

Copp was given an impressive public funeral from the university convocation hall. Classrooms were named in his memory in the Sunday school of Rosedale United Church, where he had taught for several years.

Even Rheumatic Pains Eased Fast Now!

BAD HEADACHES, NEURITIS PAINS OTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES THIS WAY

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin. Millions have found that Aspirin relieves even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches water. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it. Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show this: Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. Now all that you need to do is make in Canada, and all drugs in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

A tin of 12 tablets for economical use, or a tin of 24 or 100 at any drugist's.

CHAPTER TWELVE

Palaces and Queens

"Well—here we are for the last moment."
"Look it over, honey. It all belongs to you."
"Charlie Turner made a wholesale purchase meant to include his entire house. Eddie laughed, recklessly. They had both had more to drink and were in a mood of hectic abandon."
"Mr. Turner." The butler motioned to Charlie significantly. "Young Mr. Paige was here, sir."
"He was?"
"Asking for a Miss Chapman."
"Did you get rid of him?"
"Yes, sir."
"Come on, honey." Charlie urged Eddie up the stairs. "Remember all those pretties we bought this afternoon? They're all upstairs waiting for you."
"Just the old army game, eh?"
"As—now Eddie. Don't be so—"
"He was stopped short by Kitty's eyes, heard downstairs."
"Let me in. I want to see Miss Chapman, Eddie?" she called, forcing her way past the butler. She caught sight of Eddie and Charlie and started up the stairs. "Listen to me, honey. I'm not going to let you—"

Kitty's eyes. Her gaze fastened itself on Eddie's negligence. She sobbed.
"If you had one more feather," she said irrelevantly, "you could fly." She stumbled out of the door blindly, and into the hall, she felt her shoulders, and being shaken, and looked up into Tom's face.
"Where is she?" he asked tensely.
"In there. The front room," she gulped.
Tom opened the door as Charlie was pouring himself and Eddie a drink. He stalked over and pulled Eddie to her feet.
"Here. What's the idea." Charlie stared owlishly.
"You're coming with me." Tom took the glass from Eddie's hand and threw it savagely to the floor where it shattered into fragments. Eddie burst into hysterical laughter. "Cut it out. You're drunk."
"He started dragging her over the floor."
"Tom! What are you doing? Don't Tom!" Her voice rose to a scream as he drew her into the bathroom, and pushed her into the shower cabinet. "Tom! What are you doing?"
"Get under there! You're drunk!" The icy needle spray hit her with such force that she would have fallen had not Tom notted her with

"You're coming with me," Tom said.

"I told my chauffeur to take you home. Charlie yelled at her."
"That right, Kitty," Eddie said. "Best if you will."
"Eddie! You don't know what you're doing and I'm not going to—"
"Yes! I do! Now beat it," Eddie commanded her harshly. "Go on."
"Kitty slowly retreated down the steps, as Charlie ushered Eddie into one of the upstairs rooms. He gestured about.
"Anything you don't like honey I'll have changed. Now take off your coat, baby."
"But Eddie held it to determinedly. "Just a minute. Get me a negligee, will you?"
"A negligee?" Charlie rummaged through a stock of clothes. "Well—that ought to be easy enough as how we bought enough of 'em to last you for a year."
Kitty burst unceremoniously into the room. "I'm not going to let you throw away everything you fought all your life for, for a mug like Charlie Turner—"
"Eddie's coat fell open. "Well for the love of—" She jumped at Charlie. "Did you do that to my—"
Charlie's astonishment, however, spoke for itself. "Where's your eyes, Eddie," he asked dazedly.
"I gave it to somebody to remember me by."
Kitty eyed her suspiciously. "What have you been up to?"
Eddie's eyes flashed high-powered voltage. "Drop it," she screamed.
"It's a trifle, sweetheart," Charlie soothe her shoulders. "We won't say any more about it. Come on. Here are all the rest of your pretties."
Kitty shoved him aside. "Lay off her, you—"
"Kitty! Go home!"
"Eddie. You're tight. You don't know what you're—"
Eddie caught her arm violently. "Yes! I do. What's being good get you? A pain in the neck! What's the love? A lot of balloons! There's only one real thing a man ever gives a woman. And that's dough!"
"Eddie."
"Go on home!"
"You're coming with me," Kitty made a dive for her. Eddie almost at the breaking point, hardly knowing what she was doing, raised her arm and slapped Kitty hard in the face. She recoiled back.
"I told you to go home," Eddie's voice did a crescendo. "This is my house now!" With a swinging gesture she raised her arm in its feather-trimmed sleeves. "Get out!"
Tears of real regret welled up into

Walker knocked Out; First Time in Career
Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—Paul Pirrone of Cleveland, knocked out Mickey Walker, of Shreveport, Mayor, N.J., in the eleventh round of their scheduled twelve-round bout last night.
Two short chops to the jaw and for the first time in his long career Walker was counted out. The two blows were struck with lightning rapidity after two minutes nineteen seconds of the eleventh round. Eleven thousand spectators sat in surprised silence as the referee counted over the popular battler.
Walker was knocked down for a count of nine by a hard right hook on the point of the jaw in the second round, and he never seemed to fully recover from the effects of the punch.
Pirrone, at 159, outboxed the 160-pound "toy bulldog" in nearly all the rounds.
London, Eng.—Two Rembrandt prints stolen from the library of Lord Peel, near Peterfield, were found by workmen hidden in Hayden Wood, on Lord Peel's estate.

Paige shook the paper in her face. "You'll tell 'em just what I told 'em." He continued oracularly, as if he were announcing the truth. "I told 'em you were an innocent child—being sent to jail—and that was a frame-up by my political enemies. I told 'em why you happened to be in our suite (N.Y. 100)—because you are married to Tom!"
"That's what it says. Look Eddie!" Tom held the paper towards her.
"Er. I brushed the now completely faded Eddie to the sitting room. "Hurry up. You've got to get out of here—right now. The captain can't hold the boat all night. And I've got the license bureau right here."
He swung open the door. There, almost bowed in a taboret, sat a magistrate and a city clerk. They started out of their calm, however, at sight of Eddie and Tom dripping with water.
"Eddie hung back. "Wait a minute. You're only using me to save your own skin, and I want to know—"
"You wait a minute," Paige interrupted. "That isn't all I'm going to say for you. We come from fighting the best in the world, and we've pushed them towards the waiting magistrate. This is Judge Abercrombie—and Mr. Whits of the License Bureau."
"Sign here, Mr. Paige." The clerk held out a fountain pen to Tom.
"It was all over in the twinkling of an eye, and Eddie was in Tom's arms again. He held her as if he would never let her go. Her clothes clung to her soaked, but they were aware only of themselves.
"Sweetheart! It's forever, this time," Tom murmured, as their lips met.
There was the pleasant clank of steel as the Buckingham Palace guards passed back and forth on duty. The sweet scent of the garden mingled with the light breeze.
Her Majesty, with several of her ladies-in-waiting presided at the table. Eddie, a charming pastoral picture in a simple garden frock, stepped up to my with T. R. and R. C.
"Sign here," he said to my daughter-in-law Ma'am. May I present to Your Majesty, Mrs. Tom Paige, 'junior'?" Eddie curtsied deeply. "And my son."
The Queen extended her hand graciously. "You are extremely fortunate Mr. Paige, to have such a beautiful bride."
"I know it, Ma'am," Tom agreed eagerly.
"Sit me my dear," and the Queen turned to Eddie, "where did you get that pretty dress?"
Eddie's eyes crinkled and the corners of her mouth slanted up into a sunny smile. "It's from Bond Street ma'am. I love English frocks."
"They suit you." Her Majesty nodded with approval.
"Thank you, Ma'am."
They moved away. Eddie placed one arm around Tom's shoulder and the other through T. R.'s.
"How'd I do?" she squeezed their arms.
They both smiled back at her with quiet pride.
THE END.

TEA MERCHANTS AT FULL STRENGTH FOR TONIGHT'S BATTLE

Basket Officials Line Up Fine "Net" Card; Good Prelims

GIRLS MATCH

For an evening's entertainment of class, fast ball, replete with thrills and action, the sport-loving fan will be furnished with an excellent bill of fare, by batters performing at the Pyram tonight.
With the feature berth held by the Blue Ribbon quartette of Victoria, and the smooth-working Mosquito A's, who need no introduction to Nainaimo fans, following two well-matched preliminaries, everything possible has been done for the fan's entertainment.
The card is expected to get away to a rousing start when Alberti Hotshots perform against the fast-stepping Galahad A's, commencing at 7:30 p.m. One hour later, N. Y. C. girls promise plenty of action when they take on the best Victoria can offer, Bob Whyte's Burnetts.
Rated as the team to beat in this year's campaign for the B. C. senior girls' basketball championship, Blue Ribbons will be out tonight to retain their undefeated record. They go against Mosquitos at 9:30 p.m., and with the tea merchants getting their first taste of the "hot game," they will take no chances with the local and their great cake machine will click to perfection, avers Manager Barney Barwell.

Outstanding on the Victoria team this season are two youngsters, Porky Anderson, a seventeen-year-old High School lad, and Alex McKeachie. These youngsters are both playing their first year in first class company, and in a recent game with the highly-touted New Westminster Adanacs at the Royal City, which the Ribbons won 37-30, these "kids" accounted for 16 points between them.
"Big Chuck Chapman, captain and star of the Ribbons, will be along with them. As colorful as ever, Chuck appears started on the greatest season of his career. His partnership on the back division will be Doug Peden. Packing a deadly shot, and speed to burn Peden is usually a prolific scorer.
"Art Chapman will be seen at center again with Albert Martin, one of the headiest players in the province, and either McKeachie or Andrews flanking him."
The other forward on the club is the midget, Johnny Craig, another of the originals who lifted the Canadian championship in the season 1923-33. Craig, the veteran of the squad, is still going strong, and is usually good for six or eight points in any game.
"Bob Whyte has a snappy girls' team in the N. Y. C. to hurdle in the middle match of the three-game card. His two sharpshooters, diminutive Doreen Beere and Jean Wilson, will be the tray backed up by Marion Alexander, Erly Miles, a rugged center; Peggy Bentley, Jessie McDonald, captain; Bunny McDonald, Margaret Purdy and Margaret Caldwell perform on the guard line. This will be Victoria's baptism in the net game.
The opener between Alberti Hotshots and Galahad A's will be in the nature of a grudge match. Alberti are depending on Ryan, McFie, Dorey, Fraser, Walter, Dixon, Grover, McDonald and Ross to see them through.

Printers Still Hoped To Upset Gyros

Gyros will meet an old team, with a new name, in a roller hockey engagement at the rink, tomorrow evening, commencing at eight o'clock. Their opponents are Rangers, better known last year as Printers, who failed to upset the Clubbers in several engagements. With some promising material to assist them this season, Rangers guarantee Piper's men a strong run for the points. Frank Richards will referee.

J.G. Hindmarch Heard By Devino Members

Mr. J. G. Hindmarch, of the Herald, presented a vital challenge to young people, as members of the Christian Church, in an excellent address to Devino Club members at their regular meeting in St. Andrews United Church, last evening.
"The only way out of our present difficulties is for every person to live the life and ideals of Jesus, not mere by profess belief in them," he stated.
Devino members will co-operate with the Active group of Train Managers in repairing toys for the Christmas Cheer Committee. Donations of toys are being solicited by the club. All donations can be left in the United Church Sunday School hall, Fitzmill street, where a box will be placed for them.
London, Eng.—The Royal Society of Arts has elected George Arlitt a Fellow of the society and nominated M. Leon Gaumont, inventor of the "talkies" to be a similar honor. This is an official recognition of the cinema as "the newest of the arts."

as referee in trade matters in much the same manner as the Board of Railway Commissioners does in railway matters. It is to stand between business and industrial associations and the public."

Mr. Stevens ridiculed statements made recently that powers of parliament did not permit measures for such a purpose by the price spreads inquiry. He proclaimed his intention of using every scrap of power and authority which the Dominion Government enjoyed.

Stamp out Deflation
"I want to stamp out the spirit of deflation which, even before the royal commission had completed its findings, waits that unhappily, nothing can be done."

"Mr. Stevens scorned a waiting game."

"Why wait? Why all this piffing talk about waiting for an election, waiting for the express mandate of the people? Does anyone need a mandate from the people to work for progress now? Does anyone need a mandate to clear up the housing problem in our cities? To improve the farm conditions, so that the farmer can get a few cents more for his product? To stamp out sweatshops and give the working man a decent day's wage?"

"On the contrary, I say that every day in which those conditions exist, marks a deterioration of duty on the part of our governments."

Unfair business practices and restriction of credit were the causes of depression, he said.

"My complaint is that those who are the chief custodians of the country's accumulated wealth are not taking that position of active leadership which their position of trust demands. We have a right to expect these men to make active credit that is now dormant. Our accumulated surplus capital is in the hands of those who are unable to direct its use for the benefit of the country as a whole."

Life's weary troubles and trials are past.

If the grave were to open what changes you'd see, But eternal rest is far better for thee.

IMPRESSIVE RITES FOR J. R. MATSON

Canadian Scottish Officers, Led by Col. R. Sargent, at Funeral

Victoria, Dec. 5.—With the simple and dignified Church of England rites for the burial of the Dead, the funeral of the late John Robert Meredith Matson was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from St. John's Church. The big congregation that filled every part of the church was a touching and impressive tribute to the popularity of the deceased and the catholicity of his friendships, interests and contacts, all classes of the community being represented by individual mourners or organizations.

One of the largest representations was from the Colonist Printing and Publishing Company, of which Mr. Matson was president, almost the entire east end of the nave being filled with employees from the different departments.

Rev. Canon F. A. P. Chadwick, rector of St. John's, conducted the service, which strictly followed the Anglican ritual.

A uniformed detachment of officers from the 1st and 2nd Battalions Canadian Scottish Regiment, led by Col. Roy Sargent, Major J. R. Kingham and Major Walter Bappy, attended.

Jewish Editor Says Russians Not Starving

they did not reckon that knowledge was the first essential necessary to achieve success. Failure naturally resulted. Now they are employing the best experts procurable, many British and American technical advisers help in the pay of the Soviets. These experts have placed Russia's petroleum industry in a splendid commercial position, and are rapidly bringing other industries, including textiles, heavy machinery, and hydro-electric plants to a high state of perfection.

"A Jewish republic is one of the latest experiments of the Soviets. In Biro-Bidgan, on the borders of the Manchuria, an area twice the size of Holland has been set aside, and is being financed by the government."

Wants no War

Russian Jews are migrating there in large numbers, and already many diversified industries have been commenced, and a number of factories erected.

"There has been a lot of talk concerning Russia's warlike attitude lately. Russia does not want war, for conflict would not bring her any gains, no matter how it terminated. She will defend herself, though, and can, for her standing army rates second to France, and is an efficient machine with modern artillery and a splendid air force."

Spending several weeks in Manchuria on his way to Japan, Mr. Goldberg states that there is no pretence there about who are the real masters of the country. Outside the capital, Japan is recognized as the power behind the emperor.

Unaware of Illegal Use of Building, Say Church Officials

Vancouver, Dec. 5.—Although the United Church of Canada is owner of a residence which the Vancouver police morality squad raided twice recently, church officials were unaware of the illegal purpose for which it was used, they informed city prosecutor Gordon Scott today.

G. A. Wilson of the Vancouver Presbytery of the United Church, stated the church leased the building to a colored congregation, some time ago and was not aware it had been sublet.

Eyes Steadier

Last year her eyes rotated aimlessly. Even so I thought she saw a little for she squinted one eye the better to clear the vision of the other. But she did not hold her eyes steady.

Today they are steady and evenly focused. Also there's expression.

Her mother, Mrs. Peter Miles, who has never left her side since she lapsed into a coma Feb. 13, 1932, poked up a school child's slate. She wrote:

"I will prove to you that Pat can see and read."

In chalk, she wrote:

"Raise your first finger."

The girl's gravelly heavy dark brows knotted. Her face contracted. She who last year had lain so passive, squinted and tugged—she

Five years have passed since that day.

When we were called away, God took her home, it was His will. Within our hearts she liveth still.

Sadly missed by her husband, daughters and sons.
